

Project with a title "Exchange of knowledge and practices in adult education field between two writer's museum in Iceland and in Estonia" (foundation from Nordplus Adult programme) took place on 30th May 2016 to 30th April 2017. On that period participants from The Museum of A.H. Tammsaare (in Albu) and Is-Gljufrausteinn - Laxness Museum exchanged experiences and visited each others museums to make adult informal and non formal learning more efficient. Project had three participants. One from Laxness Museum and two from Tammsaare's Museum. Both organizations and individuals participating had many professional and general benefits. During the project learning about each others writers, culture, teaching and learning practices took place.

Laxness Museum and Tammsaare's museum need to keep good connections with museum friends and local communities. Good connections with local communities help to offer adult learner services that museum personnel can not offer themselves, but what adult learner might need. For example accommodation, horseback riding service, catering. That gives an adult learner a diverse day. The events on museums are little bit different. Laxness Museum has many concerts and Tammsaare's Museum as a theatrical play tradition, that are good ways to introduce writers.

To offer a better learning experience is to be detail oriented. For example even if some signs in the museum are missing, it can have an effect on learning. Museums also must know what they can offer and have to know their visitors. To find new solutions is to visit other museums and get feedback from visitors. Both writers museums introduce the writer that is well known in their home country and Laxness is more known in the world than Tammsaare. Therefore Laxness Museum has more foreign visitors than Tammsaare's Museum.

Both museums are situated far away from the region center, that is why museums can not offer educational experience only in the museum, but must look different output. It is good idea to take exhibitions outside the museum and find different solutions. Participants exchanged experience on that and find some new ideas.

The impact of the project will carry on. Both museums got new ideas that need to be finished.
